Outline of the Syllabus	These programs offer up-to-date instruction to help you use business technology and other tools to your advantage when you enter the workforce. A graduate of business administration has to employ technological abilities needed for business employment. Many technological and software skills are taught in a BBA course in order to prepare students for a real-life workforce situation as most companies deal with a large number of technological equipment to carry out their business. Nowadays technology and technological equipment significantly affect the way a business is run. Depending on the size of your business, technology may offer a number of advantages that will help you boost sales and produce the products that people are demanding. Technology promotes expansion and enhances the daily operations of a company and a business administrator is often in charge of handling such operations.	Whether SLM approved by Statutory Authority of HEI	Yes		Percentage of SLM developed by In- House Faculty	100

Outline of the Syllabus	The B.Sc. IT program provides high-quality academic and technical training in Information Technology, software, databases, and networking with deep focus on the mathematical and theoretical foundations of computing. Demands of skills and competencies are varying at faster pace, due to competitive and rapid market changes predominately in Small and Medium Enterprises, which urges for provision of flexible, work-integrated, continuous training, learning and development opportunities through Higher Education Institutions. There is a dire need for a paradigm shift in the training approaches in the formal and informal sector for developing skills in concurrence to the societal need. The traditional and formal educational delivery may not achieve this at rapidly changing demand with flexible approach. Provision of appropriate skills may thus be an important intervention to increasing the productivity of employment workforce. Distance and Online education is more costs effective.
